O U R A P P R O A C H

E-volve New Media Systems' approach is based on an Enterprise Relationship Framework (ERF) which identifies the needs of the key stake holders and beneficiaries of the proposed communication solution.

By using this Methodology, we are able to determine which features of any solution will provide most business benefit to the organization, whilst mapping useful content to the needs of external stake holders such as customers and partners. In addition, the dependencies and limitations of the solution will be clearly identified at an early stage.

The nature of this approach requires that we work closely with our clients at every phase of the project, to ensure that the finished solution meets or exceeds the expectations of all involved.

E-volve assigns dedicated, discipline-based teams for each project. The team works with you to identify solutions that will allow you to meet your business objectives. Team leaders from each discipline are involved from the beginning of any engagement, so that everyone is on the same page, and every project is completed quickly, effectively and efficiently.
